

Lab 12 exercise 02

All the information needed can be gathered from the `grep -nEH` command.

To execute this command on every file in the directory specified a `find` command with the `-exec` option is used.

A regular expression is used to search for the function. This is made to match a function name followed by any number of space characters and the "(" character.