

Lab 12 exercise 04

The output of `ps -e1` is captured and parsed using the `cut` command.

On my computer the output format was different than the one in the example, so it may be necessary to change the configuration present inside the script.

The status is printed at the start of the line, so it is easily checked by reading the first character of the string.